

Transformers

You don't have to be a superhero to be a transformer!

Around the world people are doing amazing things to transform their lives and make the planet a better place.

Transformers

Christian Aid is a charity that works with poor communities all over the world. Thanks to our supporters, we are able to help people in around 50 countries make changes to their lives. Christian Aid does not work in isolation but with partner organisations throughout the world.

Andrew from Scotland found an unusual way to raise money for Christian Aid.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

Andrew (13) hopped across the Erskine Bridge in Scotland on a pogo stick. He is just one of many people who are helping transform the world by raising money for Christian Aid and speaking out about things that are unfair.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

Luís and his family live in Peru. They are learning to grow vegetables and be healthier.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

In this photo Luís (10) is sandboarding on dunes near his home. He and his family are learning how to grow vegetables. 'We grow a lot in our garden,' says Luís. 'Mum was shown how to plant the seeds and look after them. We've got beetroot, radishes, carrots and lots more.' Now the family's diet is a lot healthier.

In Peru, Christian Aid works with partner organisation The Spanish Institute of Foreign Missions (IEME)

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

Tolik from Tajikistan is learning new skills on a camping trip.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

Tolik (13, right) is on a camping trip run by a local youth club. The club teaches new skills to children who have a difficult life at home. 'We are having a good time here,' says Tolik.

In Tajikistan, Christian Aid works with partner organisation Zumrad.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

Bianka from Guatemala is making friends at carnivals.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

Bianka (6) takes part in carnivals run by a local group in Guatemala City. There is a lot of fighting there so the group helps young people learn to get on together. Bianka's big sister Tirza (9) says, 'We dress up and go out on parade, dancing and marching. I like dancing best.'

In Guatemala, Christian Aid works with partner organisation Caja Lúdica Civil Association.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

In Sri Lanka, people are getting help to rebuild homes and schools
after a disaster.

Christian Aid/Brenda Hayward

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

When a huge wave – the 2004 tsunami – destroyed thousands of homes, many children and their families had to live in places such as schools. Local organisations helped people rebuild their homes and reopen schools.

In Sri Lanka, Christian Aid works with partner organisation The Organisation for Eelam Refugee Rehabilitation (OFERR).

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

In Ghana, people are asking for more and better schools so more children can go to school.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

Now everyone can join in at school in Savelugu, thanks to the headteacher and a group asking the government to make changes to classrooms. Zahara (14) says, 'The school had ramps built and I could get to school without help. Then I felt good. It has made it easier for me to be at school and study.'

In Ghana, Christian Aid works with partner organisation Social Enterprise and Development Foundation (SEND).

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

In Senegal, farmers are getting better tools so children don't need to work on the farms. Now they have more time to learn and play.

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

Transformers

Children in Senegal sometimes have to work on farms, which means they miss out on school. In one village, near a place called Mehke, a local group has helped the farmers get better tools so the children don't need to work. Now they have more time to learn and play.

In Senegal, Christian Aid works with partner organisation Réseau Africain pour le Développement Integre (RADI).

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

Real-life stories: Ghana

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

Transformers

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

Musah and Fatimata live in Ghana.

Christian Aid Online Archive

christian aid We believe in life before death

Transformers

Names: Musah and Fatimata Ziblim

Ages: Musah is 13 and Fatimata is 11

Where they live: Ghana, west Africa

The problem: Ghana is a poor country and there aren't enough schools for everybody. Musah and Fatimata weren't able to go to school as the nearest school to their village was many hours' walk away.

Fatimata and Musah have just started school.

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

Transformers

What happened: SEND is an organisation in Ghana that receives help from a charity called Christian Aid. SEND helped people in Musah and Fatimata's village to ask their government to set up a school. It took time and hard work, but the government did pay for a school to be built.

How have things changed: Musah and Fatimata can now go to school and they are more hopeful about what they will be able to do in the future.

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

Fatimata doing her homework.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

Fatimata says, 'I really want to be at school. I think it's good for me because it means I will be able to get a job and buy things for myself and my family.'

Ghana facts

- The capital of Ghana is Accra.
- Musah would like to be a farmer when he grows up. In Musah and Fatimata's village they grow groundnuts and tomatoes.
- The currency in Ghana is the Ghana cedi.
- The main religions in Ghana are Christianity, Islam and some traditional religions.
- The official language in Ghana is English, but lots of other languages are spoken too.
- Primary and middle-school education is free in Ghana but pupils need to pay for their uniform, books and pens.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Real-life stories: Guatemala

Transformers

Bianka and Tirza live in Guatemala.

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

Transformers

Names: Tirza and Bianka Barán Cornejo

Ages: Tirza is 9 and Bianka is 6

Where they live: Guatemala City, Guatemala

The problem: There was a war in Guatemala for many years. This has now ended but many areas are poor and there is a lot of crime. Lots of young people get involved with gangs, which can be violent and dangerous.

christian
aid We believe in life before death.

© Christian Aid, March 2008

A carnival parade in Guatemala City.

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

What happened: Caja Lúdica, an organisation that works with a charity called Christian Aid, started to organise carnivals and arts classes to help young people join in with peaceful and fun activities. Caja Lúdica also started using a ruined old building to hold classes, so that people had a shared space to learn new skills.

Caja Lúdica now runs all sorts of events and classes from dancing and stiltwalking, to acrobatics and acting. Tirza and Bianka go to the classes and enjoy the parades and carnivals.

Tirza says, 'We dress up and go out on parade, dancing and marching. There are people on stilts and everything. I like dancing best.'

How have things changed: People who take part in Caja Lúdica's activities are learning to be peaceful and get on together, and this is reducing violence. Tirza explains, 'I feel proud when I'm on stage dancing. If there were no dance classes, I'd be bored.'

christian
aid

We believe in life before death.

Transformers

What do they like about living in Guatemala?:

Tirza says, 'The best thing is the arts, the worst thing is the violence.'

Guatemala facts

- The capital of Guatemala is Guatemala City.
- The currency in Guatemala is the quetzal.
- Spanish is the main language spoken in Guatemala.
- There was a war in Guatemala that ended in 1996. However, there are still poor areas of the country known as 'red zones' where there is lots of violence.
- Bianka and Tirza like playing 'matado', which is a bit like dodgeball.
- Bianka's favourite food is fried chicken and chips and Tirza's is spaghetti sauce and fruit salad with banana, papaya, melon and watermelon.
- Tirza and Bianka's house has electricity and a toilet but no television. They buy their water from a water lorry.

www.globalgang.org

UK registered charity number 1105851 Company number 5171525
Scotland charity number SC039150
Northern Ireland charity number XR94639 Company number NI059154
Republic of Ireland charity number CHY 6998 Company number 426928

© Christian Aid, March 2008